A wonderful game to waste some time! Some people may frown at the energy bar (to explore a location, the player spends "energy", which is refilled either by waiting or with buying it with $), but for me it works just alright. In a lunchbreak you turn on the Lost lands and click through 4-5 locations (up to 15 min), then you go on with your life. Same thing could happen in the evening- 15 more minutes of elf saving. This way the player doesn't get bored, even though the very nature of this genre is repetitive. The game itself is quite high class. As you can see on the screenshots, the colors, the contrast and the object placing are very good. This means fun and not mindless pixel- hunting. p.s.: there are also quite a few puzzles, too (9th and 12th screenshot, e.g.). You'll love some and hate others with passion, but they are not frustratingly hard and also add to the fun factor.. Seems like a classic hidden object game with the normal pay as you play type setup.. love it .. love the game. its a very fun game if you like hidden object games. it is annoying with the energy and such but its not bad if you just wanna play it every now and then. i dont like that the hidden object hunts are timed. these games are supposed to be relaxing not put pressure on you. but its normally enough time .. I love hidden object games, and have played enough of them to know what a good one is like. While this game has some potential, there is a lot of room for improvement. Pros: Story line is pretty decent. Cons: Each time you explore an area, you use energy, and a large amount of it. You either have to wait several hours for it to replenish or spend money to buy more. The amount of time you are given to explore an area is only 1 minute. This is not enough time to find hidden objects, especially if the graphics aren't that great. If you are zoomed out of a picture, they graphics are nice, but when you zoom in to locate a hard to find object, the graphics become pixelated and somewhat distorted. Also, when you find a chest, you only have a very limited amount of time to solve a puzzle to open it. Overall: Game play time is limited and you almost feel rushed to complete puzzles and hidden object areas.. love the game. It's a nice little spin on the regular format of hidden item games, what with the quests and all. Though the energy requirement is a little irritating.. OMG this is the most boring game I've ever encountered. I think this is the first game in my life that I've stopped playing after less than 2 minutes. You literally just search through 2D drawings for random items that you require for some unknown and non-sensical reason. It's as if the devs stripped away all of the good parts of a point and click adventure game and left you with only the worst part which is searching through a screen on a pixel hunt for nonsense. If you actually like fun in your games, steer clear. I don't know how this got "very positive" reviews.. Great game for a little time waster here and there, don't feel rushed.
